

Lincoln County, located on the west coast of Oregon, is the latest agency to go live with Nightingale Notes. Lincoln County has been a model agency throughout their implementation not only for their commitment, but for the agency's novel approach of taking the transition to Nightingale Notes up a notch!

Not only did Lincoln County have Kitsap County's (WA) Suzanne Plemmons speak to their agency, they arranged for their clinical staff to shadow Kitsap County's staff. This shows amazing dedication by the agency's administration that their clinicians be involved from the very first step of acquiring a new documentation system. What better way to get buy-in from your clinicians than by seeing firsthand how someone else is using Nightingale Notes.

Every other Wednesday, this lively and close bunch came into the office at 6am so they could complete their training webinars as a group. This passion also attracted many state level program liaisons that joined them during their webinars. Before each webinar they completed their homework and assignments as a group as well. Talk about no one left behind!

Shelley Paeth, Program Manager of the Home Visit Programs, Healthy Start and WIC stated that while there are still specifics to sort out, this process is making them a stronger team. She also indicated that Nightingale Notes allows for their documentation to be more consistent.

Way to go Lincoln County! You're definitely a shining star!
